ARTIST BIOGRAPHY

Giuseppe Rapolla grows up in a place where Italy sounds like a struggle for survival: in Apulia, amidst dusty streets, eight siblings and constant uncertainty. No child prodigy, but a street urchin who learns early on to fend for himself. Only his grandfather recognises his talent, but Giuseppe doesn't listen – real life is louder. He goes off the rails, makes the wrong choices, loses himself in the wrong rhythm. The turning point comes with Germany, with Hamburg: new opportunities, several restaurants, a brief glimmer of hope – but no lasting success.

When everything comes to a standstill, his grandfather's voice returns: "You've got something." For the first time, he listens. Without a plan, teaching himself, he works his way back into music. Fragments, memories and instinct shape something of his own. His music becomes a homecoming – full of longing, ruptures and genuine emotion. Giuseppe Rapolla becomes Apollo Giu: not a trained composer, but one who sounds just as he has lived.

MUSICAL SIGNATURE

Apollo Giu reduces classical instruments to their essence. His music thrives on space, repetition and tension. Between modern classical and cinematic elements, an open musical language emerges without clear categorisation. Whether solo on the piano or with the violin – his concerts are deliberately intimate and focus on an immediate connection with the audience.
