Apollo Giu – Italian composer and pianist bridging modern classical music and an emotional soundscape

Apollo Giu is an Italian composer and pianist who has developed a distinctive musical style through his own works. His music moves between modern classical, cinematic soundscapes and contemporary piano music – characterised by clear melodies, atmospheric depth and an immediate emotional impact.

Having grown up in Apulia, Apollo Giu found his way to music via an unusual, self-taught path. Personal experiences, biographical upheavals and his return to the piano continue to shape his artistic work to this day. His compositions speak of longing, passion, inner strength and quiet moments – without words, but with clear expressiveness.

At the heart of his concerts lies the piano as a direct means of expression. This gives rise to programmes that deliberately focus on impact, atmosphere and musical intensity. Calm, sensitive passages alternate with powerful arcs of tension, creating a listening experience that leaves room for one's own thoughts and emotions.

Apollo Giu has already performed at renowned venues such as Die Glocke in Bremen and the Rudolf-Oetker-Halle. Further concert projects and new programmes are in the pipeline.

With his music, Apollo Giu appeals to an audience that wishes to experience classical and modern soundscapes in a personal, intense atmosphere.
